JOAN FELDMAN, COMPUTER FORENSICS, JOIN NAVIGANT CONSULTING, INC.

CHICAGO, May 10, 2005 – Navigant Consulting, Inc. (NYSE: NCI), a specialized consulting firm providing dispute, financial, regulatory and operational advisory services to companies in regulated industries, government agencies and legal counsel, announced today that Joan Feldman and her team at Computer Forensics Inc. have joined the Navigant Consulting Discovery Services practice.

“Joan Feldman is one of the pioneers of electronic media discovery and electronic risk control, and we are excited about the opportunities that Joan and her team offer to further expand our national Discovery Services practice,” stated Jennifer Baker, Managing Director of Navigant Consulting’s Discovery Services practice. “The combination of our extensive discovery and litigation support services with Computer Forensics’ specialized discovery and forensic skills, enhances Navigant Consulting’s position as a leading advisor in the electronic discovery field, especially in regard to large, complex discovery cases.

Ms. Feldman, and the Computer Forensics team (www.forensics.com), provide electronic discovery and forensic analysis services on such matters as trade secret theft, contract disputes, document authentication, insurance claims and general consulting regarding document production and preservation/retention issues. With a forensics lab in Seattle, plus on-site national and international capture capability, the team provides the nation’s largest companies and top law firms with a comprehensive approach to electronic discovery, including planning, cost management and data review.

“Navigant Consulting has a strong national footprint in electronic discovery services and is well respected in the industry for the high quality of the services they provide clients,” stated Joan Feldman, founder of Computer Forensics Inc. “We are really excited about the opportunities this combination provides for us to continue to expand our national profile, and further our role impacting this evolving industry.”
